Silke Communications Now Offering On-Site Service, Pick-Up and Delivery

Eugene -- When Silke Communications purchased Springfield Radio this fall, the company assessed how best to serve Springfield customers from its Eugene headquarters just west of downtown Eugene. The aging building that had housed Springfield Radio for decades could be purchased as part of the deal. But President Jim Silke made a deliberate decision to let it go.

After examining a number of other options and talking with customers, he decided not to buy another building, either. Instead, he expanded and retooled the Silke fleet and has formalized Silke's long-time willingness to provide pick up and delivery of vehicles, or to do the work at the customer's site.

"Customers didn't care where our headquarters are, as long as they weren't inconvenienced and they had our techs working on their vehicles," Silke says.

Effective immediately, Silke is offering on-site service, or pick-up and delivery within the greater metro area. All radio, GPS, video and other installation and repair services can be done at the customer's site or at Silke's high-tech bay at 680 Tyler Street. That facility accommodates all types of equipment, including firetrucks and other large vehicles.

"Speed of service and convenience have always been critical components of our business," Silke explains. "Customers really appreciate the convenience of a site visit or pick-up of a rig. It increases efficiency, gets their vehicle back to work, and saves them money. We're happy to make that possible."

Silke Communications is a family-owned company, with a record of service and innovation that reaches back to 1964. In the decades since, the company has expanded to offer a full menu of communications services, from tower leases to radio communications sales and installation.

Customers range from large public fleets to small private businesses throughout western Oregon, including Portland, Salem, Newport, Eugene, Florence, Bend, Cottage Grove, Roseburg, Coos Bay, Brookings, Grants Pass, Medford, and Klamath Falls.
